Who are we?

How can we help?

You are the expert on your child but you may benefit from advice or support to help you make the best possible choices

Parenting isn't an easy job and, at times, things can get tough. Like every other parent you want what is best for your child. Parent Support Advisers are there to help you deal with any worries or concerns about how your child is doing at school. We may not have all the answers, but we might be able to help you work out how to find them.

Helping you and your child when they are starting or moving between schools.

Regular visits and meetings with you at school or in your home

Supporting you when you meet with teachers or other professionals

Finding services and other agencies available to help families and helping to fill out forms, write letters and reports.

Help you to be fully involved as a partner in your child's education by helping you access relevant and up-to-date information.

Supporting parents to help their child get the best out of school life and explain procedures and choices.

Helping to prevent challenging behaviour from becoming more difficult

Supporting where attendance and exclusions are a cause for concern or 'Just need to talk'

We're to listen to your concerns and help you express your views
